LICENSE LAW IS YEAR OLD ABOUT JULY 1

CARMEL'S celebrated business license ordinance is now approaching its first birthday, and also is approaching the date when new businesses which took out their first year's license, on or around July 1, 1934, at the upper-bracket fee of $100 will be entitled to refunds if their business averaged gross intake of less than $12,000 per month. If they failed to survive the year, however, there is no refund.

According to Judge George L. Wood, Carmel is not obligated to make full refund at once, save to those merchants who went into business coincidental to the inauguration of the new law on July 1. One who went into business, for instance, on Aug. 1, 1934, would not be returned the full amount of the difference between $100 and the license he should pay in his bracket, but would be charged a monthly pro rata which would bring the date of his license expiration to July 1, 1936. This is so that all licenses will eventually expire at the beginning of the fiscal year.

Particular purpose of the license as submitted by the Business Association and passed by the council a year ago was to discourage seasonal businesses which start up for the summer only, take the cream of business and depart with the autumn. It is regarded as having fulfilled this purpose, but some criticism is still heard that the license schedule was not equably drawn up; that the license paid by businesses in the smaller income brackets are unjustifiably high in comparison to those of large gross income.

The licenses are paid according to this schedule, for those businesses which come under section 13 of the ordinance:

Gross monthly income of $500 or less, $8; over $500, under $1,000, $12; over $1,000 not over $3,000, $18; over $3,000, not over $7,000, $30; over $7,000, not over $10,000, $50; over $10,000, not over $12,000, $75; over $12,000, $100.

Until figures on a year's business are available, newcomers are obliged to pay the highest license, which is also a guarantee of food faith and of intent to remain in business here. One reason that the finance committee of the city council decided recently against purchase of a new road grader was that certain refunds may have to be made on business licenses paid a year ago, and that until the full amount of these obligations is known and provided for, no considerable new expense can be undertaken.

LOUIS BYINGTON TO SPEAK BEFORE LEGION AUXILIARY

Louis Byington, nationally known speaker on the history and romance of California, will address the first public meeting of the newly-formed woman's auxiliary to the American Legion, at Sunset school this evening at 8 o'clock. After the program there will be dancing and refreshments. The public is cordially invited to attend. Mrs. Patrick Hudgins, president of the auxiliary, is in charge of arrangements.

PINON PLAYERS OPEN TONIGHT AT PLAYHOUSE

TONIGHT at 8:30 o'clock The Pinon Players will present St. Ervine's comedy, "The First Mrs. Fraser," at the Carmel Playhouse on Monte Verde street. This performance, under the direction of Harriet M. Smith, will be repeated tomorrow and Sunday nights at the same hour and marks the opening of the first summer stock company on the Pacific Coast.

The company is under the direction of Miss Harriet M. Smith, who plans to present a different play at the Carmel Playhouse every weekend throughout the summer. Miss Smith is a graduate of the College of Pacific at Stockton and holder of a Master of Fine Arts degree from Yale University where she had three years study in Professor Baker's famous workshop.

In tonight's performance Miss Beatrice Newport of Pasadena and Hawaii will be seen in the title role of Mrs. Fraser, the part which Grace George played throughout America some years ago. Miss Newport is well known to Southern California theatregoers who have seen her in many of Gilmore Brown's Community Theatre productions. Playing opposite Miss Newport in the difficult role of the Scotch Mr. Fraser is Franklin Wilbur of Stockton. Mr. Wilbur has been acting at the Pacific Little Theatre in Stockton for the past three years during which he has become a favorite of valley audiences. Miss Gene Cady of Susanville and New York will be seen as the alluring but hard Second Mrs. Fraser. Cast as Ninian, the witty son, is Harry Mines of Pasadena and the Yale University Theatre. Miss Florence Rust, Sylvia Zeff, John Straub, and Yancey Smith will be seen in supporting roles.

Settings for the "First Mrs. Fraser" were designed by Palmer Field of Oakland and constructed by Stuart King of Buffalo. Both Mr. King and Mr. Field have had experience under Donald Oenslager, one of Broadway's best known scene designers. Assisting Miss Smith in the management of the company is Charles Monroe, for two years student manager of Yale University Theatre and widely experienced in Eastern summer theatre work.

Reservations for "The First Mrs. Fraser" can be made by phoning 403, calling at the Carmel Playhouse box office, or at Staniford's Drug Store.

MACHADO INFANT DIES

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Machado of Carmel succumbed to pneumonia Tuesday morning. Funeral for Catherine, only eight months old, was held yesterday.

Demand on Author Bechdolt for Stories Causes Resignation

Until Frederick Bechdolt's resignation as director of Monterey county's SERA goes into effect July 1, he is "helping out" on a part-time basis in the Salinas office. But he is already hard at work on the writing which lured him away from the high executive position, and his half-days at home are protected by a "do not disturb" sign on the study door.

"The thing I regret most about leaving this job, which has certainly been one of my life's big experiences," said Mr. Bechdolt, "is breaking ties with the office force over there. They have been trumps, cheerful about working overtime, and wonderfully helpful to me. I also appreciate more than I can say the full cooperation of the county welfare department, executives and committee, and our own SERA committee."

Organizing the SERA through its first year of its activity has been a big job, and has often overtaxed Mr. Bechdolt's strength. He found himself "pretty well tired out" this spring, and when letters began to come from his eastern agent asking when he was going to settle down to writing again, and finally an order "too good to pass up." So Mr. Bechdolt decided that with SERA now well organized and working smoothly, the time was opportune for him to return to his real profession of writing. After announcing his decision to the San Francisco SERA office, he was given the two weeks' vacation to which his year's service entitled him, and asked to continue on part-time work until his successor could be secured. The new director has not yet been named, and John Byrne, field representative, is filling in until July 1.

Revision of Carmel Theatre Plans Asked by Institute of Architects

PROTEST against the proposed design of the new theatre to be erected at the corner of Mission and Ocean by the Monterey Theatre Corporation was voiced by the Monterey Peninsula Chapter of the American Institute of Architects at a recent meeting, and was embodied in formal resolution. The architects also voted to appeal to the city council to "take action to influence the owners to reconsider the design of the structure." In order to avoid such contingencies in the future, the chapter will ask the council to appoint a committee of three architects and two artists of the Monterey peninsula, to approve the design of buildings to be constructed here.

These five resolutions were passed at the architects' session:

1. That the city council of Carmel be asked to adopt and make mandatory the Pacific Universal Building Code. It is explained that few buildings here actually come up to the standard of this building code, which is regarded by architects as embodying best structural requirements.

2. That adoption and use of said code cancel all laws heretofore passed pertaining to building structures.

3. That the sense of this body is that the character and design of the proposed theatre as submitted are not in keeping with the spirit of Carmel and we request the council to take action to influence the owners to reconsider the design of the structure.

4. That the council be requested to appoint a committee of three architects and two artists of the peninsula to serve as an architectural board of control to pass on the aesthetic side of all structures or appendages erected on or over city property. Such a committee would serve without pay, and three should constitute a quorum.

Attending the meeting at which the resolutions were passed were the five members of the peninsula chapter of the American Institute of Architects: Robert Stanton, C. J. Ryland, Guy Koepp, W. O. Raiguel and Milton Latham.

Variety Program Fills Gallery to Inaugurate New Raised Flooring

ANOTHER of those semi-social entertainments at Denny-Watrous Gallery, which Carmel attends in force and seems to enjoy more than programs of higher cultural content, was the variety show given Saturday evening to defray costs of installing a section of graduated, raised seats. The whole program was good, but the number that brought down the house was the group of Ernst Bacon's songs, sung by Steen Sconhoff, accompanied by the composer. Mr. Sconhoff "put over" the Bacon songs in grand style, and the songs themselves were a phase of Bacon's works not hitherto disclosed here. The comment was made by many that they are material Lawrence Tibbett would snap up if he knew about them; the type of rollicking American "folk songs" such as he has frequently used with such success. Among the titles were "Driving Steel," "Low Bridge," "Colorado Trail" and "Brady."

The program opened with accordion numbers by Jose Perez. Betty Hyde, assisted by Roe Marie Mattimore, Betty Glab and Babette de Moe repeated the "Sandman" act from the Carmel Vanities at Del Monte the week before. Mary Ingels, who accompanied many of the acts, gave a crackling and thoroughly satisfying performance of Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue." Betty Carr gave a tap dance. Two groups of songs and recitations were given by Patricia Morbio, the San Francisco entertainer who gave the first Woman's Club program of the season last October. Her accompanist is Laura Blockfelt.

Francis Shaw, who makes puppets, was responsible for the traditional Punch and Judy show, complete with all the details of battle, murder and sudden death which have endeared it to the innocent hearts of children of all lands for centuries.

Phyllis La Vay disclosed her versatility and skill as an impersonator with a one-man radio act portraying Peter Pan in the manner of Stan Laurel, Fanny Brice and the Barrymores.

Ruth Austin danced her rumba, "Lady in Red," from the Carmel Vanities, and a group of her students repeated their spectacular dances to two Gershwin preludes as given at their recent recital, included in the group being Betty Carr, Ruth Bowen, Betty Glab, Vera Hunter, Alice Meckenstock, Roe Marie Mattimore and Betty Rae Sutton.

A sample of Horatio Stoll's jazz pianologues proved a piquant introduction to the current performance of "Squaring the Circle" for which he has written and rehearsed the incidental music.

Wife of James Hopper Called

Carmel was saddened this week by the passing of one of the true "old Carmelites," Mrs. Mattie Hopper, wife of James Hopper, who succumbed to a lingering illness at the family home, June 6. She was 58 years of age, and had lived here since 1906.

Mrs. Hopper is regarded as the true "founder" of Devendorf Plaza. Hers was the vision which saw the unsightly vacant lot at Ocean and Mission as the ideal location for a small park; hers was the unflagging energy which raised the necessary funds, laid out the plans for landscaping, and saw the plan through to completion. This was only one of her many civic activities. A charter member of the Forest Theatre, she participated in many of its productions. In a quiet way she carried on much welfare work; she was active in the P.-T. A. On many occasions she assisted in mustering out the voters to put over propositions for the best interests of Carmel, or to oppose those which menaced them.

Mrs. Hopper joined her husband in Europe during his years there as war correspondent, and their only son, James Jr., now a student in the University of California, was born in Paris. Besides her husband and son, Mrs. Hopper is survived by three daughters: Mrs. Elizabeth M. Hunkins, Mrs. Maryan H. Mott and Miss Jane Hopper; her mother, Mrs. A. E. Leonard; a brother, George Leonard; a sister, Zona Morse, and one grandchild, Wilfred Hunkins, Jr.

T. A. Dorney was in charge of funeral arrangements, which were followed by cremation in Santa Cruz, June 7.

Entries Pouring In For Annual Dog Show

Entries are pouring in from all parts of the country for the Del Monte Kennel Club's Twelfth annual Dog Show to be held on the grounds of Hotel Del Monte Sunday, June 30.

One of the features of the show will be the Kerry Blue owned by Gladys M. Chesebrough, Jamesburg Route, Monterey, which won the highest honors at the recent Los Angeles Show.

Other local dog owners who will enter their pets will include Miss Doris Crossman, Mrs. Frances Dorcy, Adolph Hanke, Frank W. Jacott and Mrs. C. Halsted Yates.

Judges will be F. L. Jack Wolfenden, San Francisco; Lou Holliday, Santa Monica, and Kyle Onstott, Pasadena.

Actors Wanted Who Are Willing to Try Most Anything Once

Wanted, acting talent! The Pinors and actresses to appear in orss and actresses to appear in their production of Nicoli Gogol's classic Russian farce, "The Inspector General," which will be produced at the Carmel Playhouse on June 27 to 30, under the direction of Charles Monroe. Those intrigued will please mention the fact to Mr. Monroe at the Carmel Playhouse tomorrow or Sunday. Warning is hereby given that only those willing to do practically anything from standing on their heads to falling down stairs need apply. "The Inspector General" was written a broad farce and will be played as such by The Pinon Players, so actors may expect to be called on to do some amazing things for the good of their art, Russia, The Pinon Players, Mr. Monroe, and drama in general.

John Boswell Adams Passes at Age of 82

Death claimed John Boswell Adams, June 7, bringing to a close a long and active career. He was born in Rochester, N. Y., 82 years ago. A resident of Carmel for 13 years, Mr. Adams gave many years of valuable service as chairman of the board of trustees of Harrison Memorial library, from which post he resigned several months ago because of failing health, and was active in other civic affairs. Previous to his retirement here his business interests had been in lumber and shipping in the east.

Mrs. Adams survives him, and a daughter, Mrs. Carl Voss of Salinas. Funeral services were held at the family home on Carmelo June 8, with Rev. Melvin A. Dorsett in charge. Paul's Mortuary arranged for cremation at Santa Cruz.

BRIDGE CONTRACTS LET

Two bridges to cost a total of $92,728 will span Pfeiffer and Torre canyons on the San Simeon-Carmel highway to be built by E. T. Lesure of Oakland, who has been awarded the contracts by the department of public works.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel F. B. Morse are attending the exposition at San Diego.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hunt will leave for San Diego next week, to visit the fair.

Mission Restoration Measure Moves Forward

Legislation for Federal participation in preservation of historical sites as well as the missions in this district, and other places in California moved a step nearer realization this week in Washington.

Senator Murray (D., Mont.) reported from the public lands committee two bills looking toward that goal. One would declare a national policy for preservation for public use of historic sites, buildings and objects and the other would set up a national trust fund board to receive and administer gifts or bequests entrusted to the National Park Service.

The bills were introduced by Senator Byrd (D., Va.) and are companion measures to those offered in the House by Representative Maverick (D., Tex.), which have been reported favorably by the House public lands committee.

Announce Plans for Forest Theatre Fair

Following an executive board meeting Wednesday afternoon, plans were announced for the Forest Theateratre summer fair, July 4 and 5, with George Seideneck in charge as general chairman. The board promises a fair "bigger and better" than last year, with concessions and entertainment features of all sorts, and special attractions for the children.

Although the summer play has not yet been definitely decided upon, the dates have been selected; the last Friday and Saturday in July, the 26th and 27th, and Aug. 2 and 3, the following week-end.

"There's Always Juliet" Is Next

Next Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights The Pinon Players will present John Van Druten's charming comedy, "There's Always Juliet," at the Carmel Playhouse, Miss Harriet M. Smith announced today. The production will be under the direction of Miss Smith.

Mr. Van Drutin is considered one of England's outstanding younger playwrights and "There's Always Juliet" his best play. Miss Smith selected it for her important second production because of its light, airy, romantic theme in contrast to the underlying seriousness of Ervine's "The First Mrs. Fraser" and the broad farce of Gogol's "The Inspector General" which will be given at the Carmel Playhouse on the week following "There's Always Juliet."

Playing the leading roles in Mr. Van Druten's romantic comedy are Gene Cady and Franklin Wilbur. Sylvia Zeff and John Straub will be seen in supporting roles. Settings for "There's Always Juliet" were designed by Stuart King who has worked under Guthrie McClintic and Donald Oenslager.

Ernest Calley and Alberta Riemen Wed

Choosing an open-air setting at Point Lobos for their wedding, Miss Alberta Riemen, former teacher at Sunset school, and Ernest Calley, for the past six years a member of the Sunset faculty, were united in marriage Monday morning by Rev. Austin B. Chinn. The ceremony was performed in the presence only of sisters of the bride and groom, Miss Jean Riemen and Miss Phyllis Calley, and Mr. Calley's young son, Douglas. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Riemen of San Francisco, where she attended Teachers' College. Her teaching experience has been gained in Carmel, Salinas and San Francisco.

After a wedding trip to Yosemite, Mr. and Mrs. Calley will attend summer school at Huntington Lake, returning to Carmel early in the fall to make their home.

CHARLES WATSON MASTER OF NEW MASONIC LODGE

Charles A. Watson is master of the new Masonic lodge which was instituted in Carmel Friday evening, with 25 charter members, by Charles K. Tuttle, inspector of the 56th district, assisted by Russell A. Giles of Pacific Grove. Other officers elected: Ralph Zuch, senior warden; Arthur Howell, junior warden; Charles Berkey, treasurer; Barnet J. Segal, secretary; Conrad Imelman, chaplain; Harry Hilbert, senior deacon; George Wishart, junior deacon; David Askew, marshal; H. C. Farley, senior steward; Morris McK. Wilde, junior steward; Simon Rosenblatt, organist, and Joseph A. Burge, tyler.

School Auditorium Opens With Pictures

Carmel's new motion picture theatre, the auditorium of the Sunset school, will open tonight with Mae West in "Goin' to Town." There will be a matinee Saturday and the same picture will be presented Saturady night. Sunday and Monday George Arliss will be starred in "Cardinal Richelieu."

The school auditorium has been equipped with sound effects so that all the talking pictures may be heard as clearly as though they were screened in a regular movie house.

The school will be used during the summer months while the new Carmel theatre, to be located at Ocean and Mission, is under construction. It is expected that the new theatre will be ready for occupancy early in October.

Time Is Extended for Scholarship Applicants

Word has been received by Mrs. F. A. Ingalls of Pebble Beach that time has been extended from June 1 to June 8, for applications to be made for four scholarships which are to be given to Monterey Peninsula residents, covering residence and tuition expenses at the Summer Theater of Mills College. Marian L. Stebbins, head of the department of speech and the drama, is receiving the applications, and due to the fact that she will be unable to be here for interview applicants in person here until June 11 or 12, she has extended the time for written applications to her at Mills. Anyone interested is asked to write her, stating age, experience and qualifications, and major interest, whether technical or acting.

PAGEANT OF SAN JUAN BAUTISTA, SUNDAY, JUNE 23

San Juan's birthday party, to be held Sunday, June 23, in celebration of the 138th anniversary of the founding of the mission and town, promises to be the "best ever" judging from advance reports of committees, according to E. Walton Hedges, Jr., general chairman.

The pageant-play, "In a Little Spanish Town," will be supervised by Fenton J. McKenna, director of dramatics at Santa Clara University, according to Hedges. Edward Preston Murphy, who has produced the San Juan pageant for many years, will assist McKenna, but this year has chosen to play the part of Tiburcio Vasquez, the California bandit, in the production. The musical and dancing portion of the play, under direction of Mrs. Wade Hooten, assisted by Mrs. P. W. Breen, both of Hollister, is reported progressing rapidly.

Data on State Parks and Monuments In Monterey County Is Furnished

REQUESTS of tourists and others interested for information of the state parks and monuments in this area has been answered by the State Park Commission in the following data just released:

Old Custom House: In the town of Monterey, the flags of Spain, Mexico and the United States have flown over this Old Custom House. It was built in 1814, superseded in 1848 by the San Francisco Custom House. It was here that the West was claimed for the United States when Commodore Sloat raised the flag over it in 1846. The building contains a museum of many old relics.

First Theatre: This building constructed in early 1844. Was first intended for a sailors' lodging house, but was commandeered by ex-soldiers for use as the first California theatre. Eventually it was used as a resort for whalers, a dance hall and a bar.

Junipero Serra Monument: This is in the Presidio at the northern limits of the town of Monterey and is a marble statue commemorating the landing of Father Junipero Serra at Monterey Bay.

Point Lobos Reserve: This is three miles south of Carmel. One of the most spectacular places in California. There are 336 acres comprising rocky coast, gigantic surf, wind-swept cypress framing grassy inland slopes. Little has been done here to change nature's handiwork. You may park outside and walk through the area by trail or pay a toll charge and drive over the roads. Work is now in progress to provide picnic areas and camp sites, but the main plan for this area is to preserve it as a natural reserve.

Pfeiffer Redwoods. This is a recreational area among the redwoods along the Big Sur river, 31 miles south of Carmel on the Coast Highway. There are more than 100 attractive camp sites. Horseback riding, swimming and hiking furnish the principal amusements. The ocean is only a few miles away. Cabins have been erected and there is a dining room. The camps are provided with tables, stoves, running water and restrooms.

Sunset Exercises Are Distinctive

The simplicity and distinction of the eighth grade commencement exercises at Sunset school June 6 called attention once again to the taste with which the pupils' public performances are staged, and the high quality of instruction which they receive. The auditorium was filled to capacity, with parents and friends of the graduates, and with a good many people who have no active connection with the school, but never miss a program because they enjoy being astonished at the unusual offerings of the boys and girls of Sunset school.

Every one of the 41 graduates had a part in the program, which was built around the theme of "The Individual in a Changing World." Six group leaders introduced different phases of the discussion, and group members contributed a pithy phrase or paragraph. Cumulative impression was that not even elementary school children are escaping a knowledge that civilization is passing through a critical period, and that, at Sunset at least, constructive thought is being applied to the upper limits of childish ability.

The graduates, all dressed in white, and very simply, filed to and from the stage to the music of the school orchestra. The girls carried small old-fashioned nosegays, complete with frill. A large chorus of little girls, spirited and well-drilled, gave a two-part rendition of "Greetings" by Mendelssohn and Schubert's "Hark! Hark! the Lark!" Otto W. Bardarson presented the class, which he has followed through the school since the second grade; which he sees as individuals, and which the school has trained, he said, according to individual needs. Mrs. Louis H. Levenson, clerk of the board of trustees, presented the diplomas at the close of the exercises, which lasted only a few minutes over an hour.

Books, Old and New

By THELMA B. MILLER

ONE of those books which you read with a continual irritated temptation to toss aside as a bad job, yet finish because of the basic interest and importance of its material, is Albert Halper's "The Foundry"; an examination of the lives of men and women subordinated to a great factory. You may remember a book published about 1930, which this one inevitably suggests: "The Company," by Edward Seaver. The material was less rich in that study of Big Business, but it was written in a style eminently well suited to the subject. Halper's style is a difficult barrier between him and his readers; you must read the book in spite of the obstacles the author throws in the way, if you are interested in a valuable study both of pre-depression business psychology, and the inner workings of the great electrotype foundry.

Both these books show how a great business assumes an identity of its own, greater than the men who head it or the men who work for it. It is more or less an evil entity, dominating the lives concerned with it, and sweeping them along with its own inevitable destiny. Men may have started the thing in the first place, but the foundry attains a momentum of its own, and even the bosses are helpless, hypnotized by its speed and power.

Verbal Furbelows

That the reader realizes this is no thanks to Mr. Halper, who eschews the simple, clean-cut, swift-moving style which would give a stark outline to his thesis, and beclouds it with verbal furbelows in the form of high-flown and far-fetched figures of speech; interrupts his action with smart-alecky soliloquy, and creates characters who talk like nothing human. Under the spell of the involved diction a simile occurred to me that is just about as poor as many of his own; the book sounds as if it had been written with a base-ball bat dipped in gravy. Unconsciously you edit as you read. You feel that trenchant, original thought is muffed by the choice of words of not quite the right shade of meaning.

But the book is being widely read because in the end it does give a good picture of high-geared industry at the close of the roaring twenties. It is written from a five-year perspective. It shows the three bosses of the great foundry more or less letting the plant run along of its own will, so long as it remains geared up to a speed and tension just at the limit of what the workmen can bear; their attention mostly absorbed by the side issue of stock-market gambling. The book does not tell what happened to the business after the crash of 1929, but the picture is complete enough so that the reader can well imagine. Even in the roaring twenties there was basically no feeling of security for the workers; the spectre of sickness, old-age, injury which would throw them on the scrap-heap; the dread of not being able to stand up under the killing pace of the work was continually over them.

Only Defense

You see in organized labor the only puny protection working men have against both the whims of the bosses and against those inevitable forces which eliminate men from the picture and give their work to machines. Two incidents make this point graphically clear.

The first was the discharge of a good workman because his rather arrogant personality irritated Max'l Steuben, the enormously fat head of the concern, who is perhaps the best-drawn character of the book. Everything went wrong after Slavony left, and Max'l knew why the work jammed and piled up; it was the protest of the men against an unjust dismissal. In the end he had to take Slavony back, and the work smoothed out magically.

Then Max'l invented a new machine. The men received it with awed admiration; it was beautiful, and efficient and sleek, and men knowing machines as they knew their fellow workmen could not help a sort of reverence for its capacity to do more accurately and infinitely more quickly the work they had been doing. Until they found out that the machine eliminated four men from the shop. The machine they instinctively loved became their enemy; regretfully they saw to it that the beautiful machine broke down at least once a day. Again Max'l knew well enough what was going on, and he knew how to stop it. Mad but helpless, he called the union agent and told him that the four men would not be fired. After that the new machine worked beautifully.

Sabotage is hardly the answer to the problem of technological unemployment. It is unthinkable that men should go about breaking and destroying the beautiful machines that should be their friends; have relieved them of so much gruelling, backbreaking labor. But such imaginary incidents indicate the imperative necessity of finding a place in the general economy for the men no longer needed in the power age.

There was no such mass protection for the poor little errand boy; for the old janitor who acted a bit cocky on a fine spring day. The terror which is their reaction to losing their bits of jobs is not pretty to read about.

The Bowman House

In the same building with the foundry is a printing plant, the Bowman House, which is its chief customer for electrotype plates. This is an "open shop" plant, and gives the author a chance to compare the lot of workmen inside and outside of union protection. The printing plant has pep-talks, a house journal, a carefully fostered atmosphere that the concern is "one big happy family"; everythnig, in short, except the measure of security given by organization. The Bowman House Post of the American Legion is dissolved and incorporated into the Bowman Benevolent Association. The workers in the foundry hear about this and wonder why. One of their number enlightens them:

"Whenever you read about a council of governors getting worried about the activities of a group of employes, you can be sure there is a dead cat lying around somewhere . . The board of governors did't like the idea of men sitting around in some hall talking about working conditions in an open-shop plant. . . The board wanted to incorporate the Legion into the Benevolent association because some of the Post members had said something about wanting to take up courses in economics and industrial history. Some of the post members even went to a professor out at the university who said he'd be glad to teach them free. . . Someone got wind of it and informed the board. The Benevolent association has all the plant girls and women in it and when they meet as there is dancing, no talking or lectures, just jazz music . . . "

Contributions Sought to Give Scout Trip

Members of the Carmel scout troop executive committee are raising a fund of $180, to which the public is being asked to contribute, for the purpose of sending Earle Dorrance as a delegate from scout troop No. 86 to the Boy Scout National Jamboree to be held in Washington, D. C., Aug. 20 to 31. If this is successful, attempts will be made to secure funds to send two additional boys. Robert Rand is going as a representative of the Sea Scouts.

This is the first national jamboree that has ever been held, and a comprehensive program of entertainment and instruction is planned. Each 11 boys will be under charge of an adult, on their tours to historic and scenic points of the capital. President Roosevelt will address one of the general meetings. It is expected that about 30,000 boys will attend.

Health Insurance Subject of Talk Before Women Voters' League

AT its final luncheon meeting of the season, held Wednesday at Holman's solarium, the Monterey League of Women Voters heard a discussion of health insurance by Dr. Mast Wolfson of Monterey, who substituted at the last moment for the scheduled speaker, Dr. LeRoy Brooks of San Francisco, who was unable to be present.

Health insurance, said Dr. Wolfson, must be understood as not a program pushed by the doctors, but answering "a cry of the people." Systems now operating in 53 countries have in no single instance proved ideal, but no country having health insurance would now relinquish it.

A bill considered at the current session of the California legislature, written by the California Medical Association and introduced by Senator E. H. Tickle of Carmel Highlands, was so garbled and made into a "racket," said Dr. Wolfson, that its sponsors refused to have anything to do with the product, an entirely new bill, that emerged from committee. Attempts to put over the program in this state will be deferred for a year or two. The medical association, said the speaker, will not lend its support to any bill unless it provides for free choice by the insured patient of his own doctor and hospital.

In the health survey throughout the state which preceded the presentation of the bill, it was brought to light that 77 per cent of California families have incomes of less than $2000 a year, and in this income bracket fall a third of the state's doctors. Less than $1000 is earned by 51 per cent of the state's families. These facts explain why health standards have been slipping and point the need of health insurance; there is no margin for illness in families of these income categories.

Dr. Wolfson indicated his belief that the stand of the American Medical Association against health insurance does not represent the opinion of the rank and file of the nation's doctors.

Last section meeting of the League will be held next Wednesday, sponsored by the government and its operation group, at Mission Inn, Monterey. The speaker will be J. H. Jameson of San Jose, of the Citizens Committe on Government and Taxation. He will discuss the County Manager Plan.

Mrs. Carl Voss, the new league president, conducted the meeting, and Miss Clara Kellogg, legislative chairman, introduced the speaker. New board members, committee and department chairmen were introduced. By passing a resolution, the League changed its name from "Peninsula" to "County," indicating its larger scope.

"Squaring Circle" Opens Thursday

The long announced "Squaring the Circle," satirical jest on the Soviet regime by Katayev which the Denny-Watrous Gallery is presenting on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evnings of next week, under the direction of Beverly Wright, is in its last nights of rehearsal. Horatio Stoll, San Francisco jazz composer, who has written the incidental music for the play, has arrived and is in daily rehearsal with the cast. Phyllis La Vay, who carried last week's variety program with her impersonations in the "Boredom Milk Broadcast," is cast in the role of Ludmilla, and Martha Vaughan is her foil in the part of the serious young Marxian, Tonya. Henry Choisser and Kevin Wallace have the two leading male leads, with William Shephard and Bob Shinn as Flavius and Emilian. Sally Frye, Helena Stellberg, Robert Sellards and Samuel Coblentz represent Communist youths.

Those who have listened in on some of the rehearsals prophesy that the three songs, "Would It Be Ethical?" "Tsimla-Tsimla" and "Four in a Room" will be "latest song-hits" before the play is over. Mr. Stoll has a deliciously amusing syncopated arrangement of well-known Russian themes pertly superimposed on the "Internationale." The composer himself will be at the piano. Judging from the reception he received following his jazz at the variety program, his part in "Squaring the Circle" will be not the least hilarious role in the three acts of the farce.

"Squaring the Circle" was recently produced at the Palo Alto Community Theatre, and report is that the production was one of the successes of the season.

"Squaring the Circle" will run Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, June 20, 21, 22, in the Denny-Watrous Gallery, where the new raised seats give perfect view of the stage.

Presidio to Present Horse Show Sunday

Everything from a Roman race to a light machine gun squad race will be included in the horse show and carnival to be put on at Del Monte Saturday by the Monterey Presidio.

Because of the long and varied program the first hunter trial will be held at 8:30 o'clock in the morning. The morning's program will also include polo bending race, jumping and musical chairs.

In the afternoon there will be more jumping, an artillery section race, the light machine gun squad race and the Roman race. The affair is in charge of Captain Harry Mewshaw.

Greenwald Heads New Firm

FUNCTIONING as a general finance company the newly-organized Safety Securities Corporation of Monterey, headed by a number of prominent local businessmen, announces opening of offices this week.

The firm will lend funds on personal property, autos, collateral notes, and other securities, says John C. Greenwald, president.

Families whose debts have outstripped their incomes will be offered assistance in reducing their obligations in a systematic way at a reasonable interest charge.

John C. Greenwald is president and general manager of Safety Securities corporation. For 11 years he has conducted a general finance, real estate and insurance business here; before coming to Monterey he was assistant cashier and assistant manager of the First National bank of Del Rey, and for three years he was associated with Bank of Monterey.

Ernest M. Upshaw, district manager for Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company, with 15 years' experience in insurance, investment banking and finance company organization, is executive vice president.

Harry H. Ellis, vice president, has for 15 years been engaged in brokerage and general insurance business in Watsonville.

O. W. Irwin, chairman of the loan committee, has had banking experience and 14 years' mercantile credit experience, both wholesale and retail. He is manager of the Peninsula Credit Exchange.

John Milton Thompson is attorney for the firm. Offices have been opened at 236 Alvarado street, Monterey. Ellis is in charge of a branch office in Watsonville.

On their way to San Francisco and Yosemite, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Angell of Los Angeles stopped off Sunday and Monday to visit Mr. and Mrs. V .O. McMillan in their home on Bentley street, Pacific Grove.

Legion Is Host at Dinner Party

Carmel Post 512, American Legion, was host Wednesday night to about 50 prominent Carmel citizens at a dinner served at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club. James J. Regan, commander of the post, made an opening address following the sumptuous repast, in which he explained the reasons for the affair. He called upon those present for constructive criticisms and suggestions. Jack Schroeder acted as toastmaster and called upon the following for remarks:

Father M. D. O'Connell, General Daniel W. Hand, Byington Ford, James Thoburn, Judge Thomas Taylor, Dr. W. T. Davidson, James L. Cockburn, Bud Crossman, Frederick Bechdolt, Paul Whitman, K. Y. Sapero, Ernie Schweninger, Ross C. Miller, Benjamin Schulte, Dr. John Gray, Bernard Rowntree, Col. James Wallace and Dr. Herbert Tolfree.

A letter was read from Perry Newberry expressing regret that he could not be present.

Sascha Jacobinoff Arrives Here to Participate In Summer Concerts

By THELMA B. MILLER

OUTSTANDING among the dozen or more concert artists who are vacationing in Carmel and will participate in the summer concert series of the Carmel Music Society or the Bach Festival, is Sascha Jacobinoff, who arrived early this week and has currently been more interested in house-hunting than in the more rarefied realms of art. Soloist for a number of years with the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra, he has also established himself as a concert violinist, and has added to his fame through radio work, to which he plans to devote more time next season.

American Born

Jacobinoff is American born, of Russian parentage, but prepared himself through European study, with Karl Flesch and Leopold Auer. Like most of the younger musicians, he is intensively interested in the moderns. Like the more honest of them, he admits that a good deal of tripe is being written in the guise of music; without either beauty or significance. However, by regarding this as a transition period in music, as it is in so many other things, he feels that many of the composers using the new and incomprehensible idioms are laying a foundation on which a new music will arise.

Plays Modern Music

"I play a good deal of modern music," said Mr. Jacobinoff, "and for my own amazement, I try out much that I would not dare present from the concert platform." Specifically he mentioned a thing of Stoessel's, which requires two of the violin strings to be keyed higher, one half a tone, the other a whole tone. The score is then played just as written, but with the piano accompaniment in another key. The effect is best left to the imagination. Time is the best test for many of these brain-children, he thinks; familiarity either discloses beauty and logic at first undetected, or nominates the work for oblivion.

Jacobinoff had an eventful motor trip west with a friend; they ran into the midwestern floods and a tornado, and had to be towed out of raging waters on one occasion. He visited Carmel many years ago, and has always remembered it as a place where he would like to spend a vacation some time. With his own forthcoming concert and the unusual quantity of musical activity on schedule for this summer, he is finding it especially congenial, and expects to remain some time after his concert of June 25.

Fathers To Have Inning on Sunday as It's Their Day

Poor old Pa, who is always put at the tail end of the Christmas list and is always on hand to meet the bill collectors, has finally been acknowledged with a day of his own in which he will be "at home" to the "Greeks bearing gifts."

Christmas day comes for father next Sunday, and while stores on the peninsula have not arranged special floors decorated in green and red, with fanciful toys and goodies through which he can browse during the weeks prior to this momentous day, they have, nevertheless, dug down to the secret corners of their pockets to bring up out of the ordinary gadgets and surprises for his enjoyment.

Carmel Girls Invited To Join Grove Fiesta

Completion of the new municipal swimming pool will be the signal for one of the greatest civic celebrations that Pacific Grove has ever known. There will be three full days of merrymaking from June 28 to 30: water sports, bathing girl parade and contest, dancing, golf tournament, night baseball, and a revival of the old feast of lanterns, as some of the many attractions. The "feast of lanterns" will consist of a parade of a hundred or more illuminated and decorated boats, which will parade past Lover's Point.

The bathing beauty parade and contest is open to all girls on the Monterey peninsula, and the fair sex in Carmel is invited to take part. Many lovely trophies will be awarded, and Carmel is expected to be well represented. Application blanks are available at Staniford's Drug Store, for all girls that are interested. Parade and contest will be held at 7:00 p. m., Saturday night, just before the "Feast of Lanterns."

MILLS GRIND SLOW, BUT WE GET AN INSPECTOR

Wheels of government grind slowly but very surely. Last autumn a rather feeble attempt, supported by a petition, was made to secure door-to-door delivery of mail for Carmel. The petition was duly forwarded to Washington, and this week an inspector arrived to see what it was all about. He visited the post office and conferred with a number of representative citizens. What he heard convinced him that a mistake had been made. He will report to the postal headquarters at Washington that there is no demand for mail delivery in Carmel.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"God the Preserver of Man" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, June 16, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Golden Text will be: "The Lord giveth wisdom: . . He keepeth the paths of judgment, and preserveth the way of his saints" (Proverbs 2: 6, 8). Other Bible citations will include: "The Lord upholdeth all that fall, and raiseth up all those that be bowed down . . . He will fulfill the desire of them that fear him: he also will hear their cry, and will save them. The Lord preserveth all them that love him:" (Psalms 145: 14, 19, 20 to :)

The Lesson-Sermon will also include the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The divine Mind that made man maintains His own image and likeness. . . All that really exists is the divine Mind and its idea, and in this Mind the entire being is found harmonious and eternal. The straight and narrow way is to see and acknowledge this fact, yield to this power, and follow the leadings of truth" (p. 151).

Carmel Hardware Bought by Burke

The purchase of the Carmel Hardware Company by William A. Burke is announced today. Coincident with the announcement of purchase is the reopening tomorrow in a new and more spacious location on Dolores street opposite The Pine Cone office.

New stocks of hardware, sporting goods, and radios will be carried, all more complete than have been carried before.

Burke is well known on the peninsula, having been employed at Peirce & Towle of Monterey for the past 12 years. He has had over 30 years' experience in the hardware business, and it is his belief that he will be able to buy and sell his wares at very reasonable prices.

Billy France, who has been associated with the Carmel Hardware Company for some time, will continue in active charge of the radio sales and service department.

MOHAWK STOCKS TIRES

Mohawk Petroleum Company, one of the leading independent oil companies of California, has made an announcement that effective at once all independent gas stations carrying Mohawk products have been stocked with Mohawk tires for the convenience of the public. Just as Mohawk gasoline is known as one of the best non-premium motor fuels on the market, Mohawk tires have been known for years for high quality and rugged construction.

Work of Sunset Students Framed for Window Display

In the window of Etta Stackpole's jewelry shop on Dolores this week is an attractively mounted exhibit of the linoleum block prints which illustrated The Pine Cone's Sunset school edition of May 31. The prints are in narrow black frames which suit them admirably, and without the sign that credits the elementary school pupils for the work, no one would guess that they were juvenile products. The black-and-white window is most effective and attracts much attention.

THEFT AT MISSION

Theft of approximately $5 from the "poor box" in the Carmel Mission, as well as a few rare old Spanish coins, has been reported to the sheriff's office by Constable Frank Oyer.

The burglars gained entrance to the mission through an open window, Constable Oyer said.

Officers believed the entrance was made by children, and an effort is being made to recover the rare coins.

Believe Heart Attack Caused Boys' Death

Mystery surrounded the death of an 11-year-old Monterey boy in Carmel Valley Sunday, although officers did not believe foul play entered into the tragedy.

The youth, Donald Leroy McKim, who died in front of four other playmates in a natural pool in the Los Laurelles subdivision two miles south of Robles del Rio, was found to have had less than half a pint of water in his lungs when resuscitation methods were attempted, and it was believed that he came to his death from a heart attack, or a blood clot on the brain.

The Carmel fire department's pulmotor crew was called, but was unsuccessful in bringing back life.

Young McKim, whose parents own a woodyard in Monterey, had been injured five months before when his bicycle was hit by a car. He suffered skull injuries from which he never completely recovered.

Monterey High School Graduates 126 Seniors

One hundred and twenty-six seniors made up the class of 1935 which graduated in the Monterey High School gymnasium Thursday evening, the girls in pastel semi-formals and the boys in dark suits. Robert Kennedy, valedictorian, Violet Bileci, salutorian, and Mary Poulos were the student speakers.

"Class Day" exercises took place on Wednesday before the student body, during whcih the class will was read by Bernard Schulte and the prophecy by Norman Skadan. The graduates will scatter all over the landscape next year.

Where the Money Goes Explained

We went around to see Ed Ewig and asked him what the Sunset school board of trustees is going to do with "all that money" for renting the school auditorium for a motion picture theater this summer.

"All that money!" and he threw up his hands. "Let's do a little arithmetic. The theatre company is paying us $100 a week for the auditorium for nine weeks. We have to build a new concrete housing for the heating system, because it is directly under one of the class-rooms and constitutes a potential menace. That will cost $2900. Two class-rooms must be completed, because our average daily attendance has increased 10 per cent. We are only two pupils under our all-time high enrollment. We will have to hire an additional teacher next year. We have to figure on transportation for children within the district, but not within walking distance of the school. We voted uniform salary increases last month. All that money! That $900 from the theater is just a drop in the bucket, but it will help."

The school board held its June meeting Tuesday evening, and discussed some of these matters of increased expense. No action was taken on the matter of placing liability insurance, which was also discussed. Mrs. Ann B. Uzzell, who was a long-term substitute teacher during the past year, was elected to the teaching staff. The board also voted against allowing the Carmel Music Society to use the auditorium rent-free for the summer music series, on the grounds that this would set a bad precedent.

EQUESTRIAN CITED FOR BEACH ORDINANCE VIOLATION

Louw Jones, first victim taken into court this season for violation of the ordinance prohibiting riding of horses on Carmel beach after April 1, was dismissed by Police Judge Wood with a warning. From now on, violators will be fined, Judge Wood said. He would particularly like to catch up to a group of equestrians who were seen to ride up to one of the signs on which the prohibition is announced. After all read it, three good citizens turned around and rode away from the beach. The other two kept on. Judge Wood offers a nasturtium to those who obeyed the sign, and has a frown for the others, if they ever do it again.

Dance Recital Tomorrow Night

A dance recital of exciting local interest is that of Helen Hamilton and Beatrice Lewis, whom the Denny-Watrous Gallery is presenting tomorrow evening. Helen Hamilton is the gifted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hamilton of Carmel Highlands, who together with Beatrice Lewis has a studio in San Francisco. Both young women have studied with Kreutzberg, Zemach, and with Walton Biggerstaff. Miss Lewis appeared in concert work both in New York and Chicago for some three years before coming to San Francisco.

Following the recital of Miss Hamilton and Miss Lewis in San Francisco some two months ago, Alfred Frankenstein of the San Francisco Chronicle wrote, "Whatever they attempted they carried through with grace and surety, to the great delight of a large audience."

The program for tomorrow night, with Pasquin Bradfield at the piano, is as follows:

Blue Lilies (Dawes), Beatrice and Helen; Three Studies (Poulenc), Beatrice; Fettered (Cator), Helen; Mazurka (Rossini-Respighi), Beatrice and Helen; Foreboding (Moussorgsky), Beatrice; Unresigned (Engels), Helen; Rapsodie is a rapsodie is a rapsodie (Gershwin) dedicated to Gertrude Stein, Beatrice and Helen; In an Old Manner (Bach) Helen; In a Modern Manner (Satie) Beatrice; Two Poems (Yamada), Helen; Odalisque (Critchfield), Beatrice; Play (Beethoven), Beatrice and Helen; Saudades do Brazil (Milhaud), Beatrice and Helen.

Having braved the wilds of the Santa Cruz mountains from Monday until Wednesday, Miss Constance Messenger, Mrs. Jane Messenger and Miss Betty Draper declare themselves "none the worse" from their experience.

Richard Draper, student of the College of the Pacific, has returned to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Draper, where he will spend the summer.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Draper, Miss Betty Draper, John Edwin Draper, and Richard Draper journeyed to Fresno Thursday, where they witnessed the graduation of Miss Margaret Draper from the Fresno State College. Miss Draper is a very accomplished musician, having sung in the Fresno A Cappello choir for four years, the last year of which she was the soprano soloist.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Harris and daughter, Jean, are leaving today for Napa, where they will make their home, Mr. Harris being transferred there from Pacific Grove. Last Saturday night a farewell party was given them by a few of their friends. At this time a lovely gift was presented to the Harrises and a book was given to Jean. Those enjoying the evening of cards and refreshments were: Mr. and Mrs. Harry Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Newberry, Mr. and Mrs. W. Fitzgerald, Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Wight, and Mildred and Wilda Newberry, Kathleen and Robert Fitzgerald, Dwain and Nadine Wight.

* * *

With Mrs. E. R. McQuilkin as hostess and Mrs. Eva Preston as assistant hostess, the members of the Needlecraft Rotary Club met at the home of Mrs. McQuilken, where a social afternoon was enjoyed. Plans were made for a July meeting which is to consist of lunch at the Lovers' Point Inn and a picnic afternoon on the beach. Those present were Mrs. C. E. Barker, Mrs. Hubert Cairns, Mrs. R. H. Down, Mrs. Lucie B. Freeman, Mrs. A. B. Jacobsen Mrs. J. K. Paul, Mrs. A. H Powers, Mrs. W. F. Way, Mrs. W. T. Moore, Mrs. A. L. Staniford, Mrs. George Paul, Mrs. Lawrence Lyon, Mrs. A. R. Gregory, Mrs. E. R. McQuilken, Mrs. Eva Preston, and guests—Mrs. Herbert Barker, and Leland Paul.

Miss Vega Swift has been dividing her time thus far during her vacation between Santa Cruz and Fresno.

PAY FOR ELECTION BOARD

Members of the election boards who served during the utility election will receive $5 for their services, it was learned following a meeting of the board of supervisors at Salinas when that amount was agreed upon.

Restore Golden Bough Is Plea

In 1924 a San Franciscan and a foreign friend visited Carmel and attended the opening of the Theatre of the Golden Bough, when "The Mother of Gregory" was given its history-making production. The foreigner, in his enthusiasm at the beauty of the play and all the contributing atmosphere, exclaimed:

"Ah, it is not 'see Naples and die,' but 'see Carmel and live!'"

As other strangers have visited the incomparable Theatre of the Golden Bough, their praises have spread its fame abroad until Carmel has realized and appreciated that the village possessed an art treasure unequalled and internationally known.

Today, ten years later, the theatre created to meet the needs of an unique village, is a tragic shell. However, Carmelites who cling to the old traditions and love of the theatre, who still possess civic pride, are determined that the Theatre of the Golden Bough shall be restored. As evidence of this, the restoration committee will shortly call upon all Monterey Peninsula citizens to help toward that end.

MANY FOREIGN STUDENTS

Students from 40 foreign countries were registered at the University of California during the present academic year, it is shown by statistics from the office of Registrar T. B. Steel.

WATSONVILLE TO CELEBRATE

With less than a month to go, preparations for this year's Independence Day celebration in Watsonville, July 3 and 4, are getting into high gear. It will be a grander and even more glorious Fourth than ever before staged in the Pajaro Valley, declares General Chairman Ed Petersen.

MUSIC MATTERS

THE summer series of concerts, including a four-day Bach festival, which Denny-Watrous Gallery is presenting under the sponsorship of the Carmel Music Society and the Monterey Peninsula Orchestra Association, opens Tuesday evening, June 25, with a recital by Sascha Jacobinoff, violinist. The concert, as well as the following events of the series will take place in the Sunset School auditorium.

The single exception to this location is the fourth concert of the Bach Festival, Sunday evening, July 21, which will be given in the Carmel Mission.

This summer's series offers more than ever before, which is saying a great deal, considering Carmel's past musical history. A feature of the Bach Festival will be the daily lectures by Beatrice Colton, of the University of California.

Ernst Bacon, conductor of the Monterey Peninsula Orchestra and director of the Bach Festival, is residing in Carmel for the summer. Mr. Bacon is busy with rehearsals almost every night of the week. The chorus meets Monday evenings, rehearsing diligently the Bach cantatas. There is still room for sopranos and tenors, and all interested in singing are urged to get in touch with the Gallery, and go to rehearsal on Monday night.

All five of the distinguished artists who are to appear at the Woodland Theatre in Hillsborough this season are greatly sought after by leading musical organizations and institutions throughout this country. Alfred Hertz, who will wield the baton at the first of the Philharmonic Society's four Sunday afternoon open-air concerts on June 30, will preside at the helm of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, when, during the month of August, that organization plays a two weeks engagement in the Ford Bowl on the grounds of the San Diego Exposition.

Richard Lert, who will occupy the podium at the Woodland Theatre on July 7, will be one of the several conductors to appear in the Hollywood Bowl this summer. Lert's wife, the celebrated Vicki Baum, author of "Grand Hotel," will come from Los Angeles to be present upon the occasion of her husband's concert.

* * *

Coming to California to conduct a six weeks Master Class and appear as pianist with the Pro Arte Quartet in a series of concerts at Mills College is Harold Bauer, who will play the Schumann A Minor Concerto for piano and orchestra under the baton of Lert.

* * *

The Philharmonic Society's third conductor, Basil Cameron, who will make his initial appearance before a Woodland theatre audience on July 21, will be heard conducting his own Seattle Symphony Orchestra at the San Diego Exposition later in the season.

* * *

The brilliant young pianist-conductor, Jose Iturbi, who is at present enjoying a brief vacation at his villa situated in an orange grove near Valencia, Spain, will for the third consecutive season, be one of the featured conductors of the Stadium series. The date set for his Woodland Theatre concert is Aug. 4.

Governor Holding Up Chain Measure

Considerable propaganda has been released on the premise that chain stores have threatened to move out of California if Assembly Bill 2365, the Cronin-McMurray chain store tax bill, becomes a law. If true each such evacuation of a chain store would be supplanted by an independent merchant who could personally be counted on to assist in building up his community and keeping the profits of such business in California.

The independents are the pioneers of all business in this state and it was only after a community was thoroughly established by individual citizens that the chains intruded with their vast buying power and supplanted these individuals by underselling and after removing them, raised their prices sufficiently high to take care of the loss sustained during the driving-out process.

"Certainly the Governor of California as an individual and statesman can cearly visualize that this system must be curbed to some extent to retain a portion of the money now leaving California for certainly no man with the interest of California at heart could veto such an equitable and just measure of taxation," said E. H. Ewig.

"Senate and Assembly passed Assembly Bill 2365—the Cronin-McMurray Chain Store Tax bill — by greater than a two-thirds majority vote thereby expressing the voice of the common people, and by this overwhelming vote actually urging the governor to sign the bill. Every red-blooded Californian should write to our governor requesting his signature of this bill giving the little fellow in business an opportunity to survive the onslaught of the chains and at the same time retaining within the state a part of that money which rightfully belongs here as result of business done in California."

Arriving this week from San Francisco, Mrs. Walter H. Duane and her son, James, are established in their home on Junipero for the summer.

INTOXICATED DRIVER IS SERVING JAIL SENTENCE

Frank White of Seaside is serving a sentence of 90 days in the county jail, result of his arrest here last Friday on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Attention of the arresting officer was attracted when he saw White's car traveling on the wrong side of Ocean, between Mission and Torres. Investigation showed that the driver required a physician's care. The examining physician declared him intoxicated, and on this evidence Judge Wood pronounced sentence Saturday.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

ETHEL ROMIG FULLER, Oregon writer, living temporarily in Carmel, has just returned from Hollywood, where she attended the Festival of Allied Arts, sponsored and conducted by the women's auxiliary of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, under the direction of Mrs. Grace W. Maybee.

At an all-day meeting of the poetry writing division of the festival held in the Pilgrimage Play theatre, Mrs. Fuller received three prize awards—a first prize for an unpublished book-length manuscript of verse; two second places—one, for her published book of verse, "White Peaks and Green"; the other, for a blank verse poem, "And This, My Dream."

This meeting was conducted by the chiarman of the verse writing judges, James Neill Northe, editor of Silhouettes, Ontario, California, and was attended by several hundred California writers and their friends.

Mrs. Fuller, whose poems appear in magazines ranging in type from American Mercury to Wee Wisdom, and who publishes widely in England also, will have an article in the July issue of Travel, called Figureheads and Windjammers. The article will be illustrated by pictures of figureheads on old sailing ships taken 40 or more years ago by L. S. Slevin of Carmel. Sometime during the coming year, Mrs. Fuller will have a new book out—Channel Lanterns, a volume of sea poems.

Her two published volumes are White Peaks and Green (now in its second edition), and Kitchen Sonnets.

Dawn Across Water

In the hour of dawn
Beside a lake,
Is beauty enough
For eyes to take,
So never again
A heart may need
Other than this
Whereon to feed—
Beauty enough,
For the next heart-hungry
Beauty-lover.

WHILE showing California to a group of eastern in-laws, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., indefatigable writer and socialite, stopped at Highlands Inn over the week-end, guest of Senator and Mrs. E. H. Tickle and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fisher. For many years an intimate friend of President Roosevelt and his family, Mr. Vanderbilt had many interesting anecdotes "from sources close to the president," but confidential in nature. The Highlands Inn folk, whom he visits periodically, say that he is excellent company. He also had many stories of Hollywood this time, for while the script of his "Farewell to Fifth Avenue," which he has sold to the movies, is in preparation, he is spending a good deal of time in the film capital. He and his wife are making their home at Lake Arrowhead at present.

* * *

DAN TOTHEROH, he who assisted Garnet Holme in producing the first Serra play in Carmel, and produced "Salome" here in 1925, returned to Carmel for a brief visit with Tilly Polak one day this week. He was accompanied by the beauteous and gracious Helen Gahagan. Both were en route east from Hollywood, where Miss Gahagan has been working in her first film, and Mr. Totheroh writes scenarios for Fox. "Wild Birds" and "Distant Drums" are two of the plays which have added to Mr. Totheroh's fame since his Carmel days.

CARMEL is watching with interest the arrival of the young theatrical people who will entertain at the Playhouse this summer. They promise to be an interesting addition to the village and after tonight, we will know just how good they are as actors and actresses.

John Straub of Hollywood arrived in Carmel last Sunday from New Haven, where he has been attending Yale University. Mr. Straub will be seen as Murdo in tonight's performance of Ervine's "The First Mrs. Fraser" at the Carmel Playhouse.

* * *

ANOTHER of the Pinon Players is Miss Bonnie Finkbohner of Stockton, who arrived in Carmel Tuesday. She is a student at the College of Pacific and a member of one of Stockton's oldest pioneer families.

FRANK SPENCER of Portland got in from New Haven yesterday morning. He has just received a Master of Fine Arts degree from Yale University, where he has been studying the past three years. He will design settings and costumes for Miss Smith's Pinon Players.

Reception Honors Newly-wed Couple

Following the marriage of Mrs. Sara Rinehart and Edward J. Reilly by Rev. Melvin C. Dorsett at Community church Friday afternoon, a cocktail party and reception was given by Mrs. James Thoburn and Mrs. P. A. McCreery at the Thoburn home. The bride's colors, pink and green, were carried out in the appointments; pink hydrangeas and masses of other garden flowers beautified the rooms. From the living-room balcony, Mrs. Reilly tossed her bridal bouquet to the guests below, and Miss Madeline Currey, according to tradition, should be the next bride of Sunset school, for she caught the flowers.

Guests at the reception included: Mr. and Mrs. Otto W. Bardarson, Dr. and Mrs. Millard Klein, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Trowbridge, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Kohner, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuthill, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. H Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Erickson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Stromberg (Salinas), Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Black (Salinas), Mrs. Edna C. Lockwood, Mrs. Frances Johnson, Mrs. Bernita Ninneman, Miss Madeline Currey, Miss Anna Marie Baer, Miss Althea Kendall and, from Salinas, Miss Corinne Lewis, Miss Marie Fidel, Miss Charlotte Joy and Miss Hazel Sneible.

Mrs. Reilly leaves Carmel, after two years on the faculty of Sunset school, to make her home in San Francisco, where her husband is connected with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Singers Rehearse for Summer Bach Festival

Over a score of singers are meeting for weekly rehearsals under the baton of Ernst Bacon, in preparation for the Bach festival of July 18-21. The choral music is beautiful, difficult and good, and solving its intricacies so that the organ-like blending of parts rolls forth triumphantly is an adventure which these serious musicians are enjoying to the full. Two Bach cantatas are now being studied by the chorus, and seldom do amateur singers have the opportunity to work on such magnificent music. The tenor section is still weak, and additions to the group will be welcomed.

Rehearsals are held each Monday evening at 8 o'clock at Denny-Watrous gallery. Next Monday's rehearsal only will be held in the Sunset school lunchroom.

FIRST OF A SERIES

LIKE CLIMBING A GRADE
. . . . . with a slipping clutch

Ever have a clutch go back on you? Maddening, isn't it? You plod along—motor racing, fairly eating up gas. But that's a mild example of wasted power. You know what's wrong, and have it fixed. Sometimes power losses aren't so easy to see. That's when they're dangerous.

Take a pumping plant: the heaviest power user on the average farm; a major item of operating expense; a deciding factor, in many cases, between profit and loss..

Does a pump give you warning when it begins to waste power? No! With a pump, you've got to look for trouble. Some of the smoothest running plants are power wasters of the worst kind.

There are symptoms, however, that tell you when your pump is "sick." And they're easy to see if you look for them.

First, you'll notice it takes you longer to irrigate. Then, with an increase in pumping hours, your power costs will go up.

Ultimately, you'll be paying more for wasted power than it would cost you to recondition your plant.

Be on the lookout for these symptoms. If you see them, get in touch with us promptly and arrange for a thorough test.

A test costs money, to be sure. But not a penny of this cost is charged to you. The only payment we accept is customer good-will.

Remember—if you don't know; don't guess! Simply call our local office and we'll test your entire plant—FREE.

WHAT'S YOUR REACTION?

Carmel's fatal error in reaching its present stage of gangling adolescent growth without providing itself with a planning board is being visited with suitable consequences. The proposed building of the Monterey Theatre Corporation is a case in point. Despite the fact that Councilman Joseph A. Burge says it is a "right pretty building," and the Cymbal remarks that it is "particularly beautiful," a good many Carmel people think that the architects' drawing shows a structure singularly devoid of taste and thoroughly unsuitable for a village dedicated to repudiation of the common-place and to artistic expression.

A $50,000 building is likely to be with us for a long, long time. It seems incredible that a theatre corporation has made plans to build here with utter disregard to the wishes and feelings of the citizens. Most of California's large towns and small cities have been adorned with bogus Spanish movie "palaces" during the past decade. Few towns have protested, because the norm of taste in the average California town is pretty low. The inhabitants have been awed and pleased by the motion picture grandeur, have taken what they have been given and liked it.

Carmel has five or six builders and architects of unquestionable taste and ability. We know that one or two of them would have acted in an advisory capacity with the architect of the theatre company, out of pure civic spirit, to make sure that no mistake was made in the type of structure to be built in Carmel. We believe it is still not too late to make certain changes which will tone down the gaudy palace to a simplicity more in keeping with a village in a forest. The marque, the only possible use for which can be those brilliantly lighted signs which are anathema to Carmel, is a particularly regrettable feature.

Mayor Thoburn attempted to discuss the matter at last week's council meeting. He was hushed by members of his own board who told him "that is outside our jurisdiction." True enough, it is, and we admit readily that Carmel is legally powerless to regulate the external architectural details of the building.

But public opinion is a fairly powerful force for good. If the theatre company, which naturally expects the people of Carmel to return to it, with a profit, the rather handsome investment it is preparing to make here, discovers that its building is causing a bad psychological reaction, they may still revise their plans.

How about expressing that reaction, Carmelites?

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

Twenty-nine pupils of Sunset school had perfect attendance during the year just closed, and established a record for the school. It indicates not only that health standards were unusually high this year, with freedom from the epidemic diseases which affect children particularly, but that the children are interested in the school and their parents are concerned with having them miss as little work as possible. Moreover, it was a direct response from the children to a little straight talk from the teachers last fall. Carmel youngsters are mature enough to take an interest in such technicalities as the school's "average daily attendance" and the effects that poor attendance have on the school's allotment of state funds.

Scientists call the great African stork the Shoebill. Husbands call him the Doctor's bill.

ANOTHER SPRING

Another Spring.
The stir of unused wings
Against the air. Syringas lean
White frailness on the stem, the ring
Of steel to sod, and smell
Of wounded earth left gaping in the sun.

You who were so intricately a part
Of this new glory, gone,
Gone as blossoms of an older Spring,
With feathered throats that were to sing
Their ecstasy of life immeasurably.
You then held mystery in part, the whole
Is now within your hand. Fathoming rebirth,
The clang of seasons forged, grey litany of rain,
Dawn spilled upon the earth, the dew distilled,
And night bridged low across unnumbered hills.

I stand beneath it all, alone,
Untutored in the alchemy of budded bow,
Reverencing that I cannot comprehend,
Holding beauty to a heart that knows
So much of death at Spring's nativity.

So like the elm, twin to its kind
That shares, inclemency of hours, halcyon days,
That, thrilled with wonder at a moment rare,
In joy primeval, toward kindred strains,
To find its arms beat on the empty air.

—NAOMI PHELPS.

Here's Looking at You

By LOIS COLLINS PALMER

WE had a small adventure in connection with mushrooms the other day. We were talking with a grocer about some canned mushrooms, and a stranger stepped up and asked us if we ever used fresh ones. We said, yes, indeed, quite often, but the particular dish we were planning to make called for canned ones.

"I've got some mighty good mushrooms," he said mysteriously, "a kind you've never seen before, I bet. I've tried to sell 'em, but people seem to be suspicious of 'em, or something. So I give 'em away. I bet I've given away as many as 300 pounds a week. Would you like some?"

"Why, er—— we might try them. Where is your place?"

"Oh, that's all right; you stay right here. Where I raise them is a secret. I'll bring them to you."

◆ ◆ ◆

He was off before we could comment one way or the other. We waited uneasily, wondering if it wouldn't be better to get in the car and disappear ourselves. He looked all right; tall, slim, curly brown hair, a Bull Durham cigarette, slightly used, tucked over one ear. That slightly daft look in the big blue eyes might be our imagination . . . While we were still ruminating, he came back, with a package wrapped in a crumpled newspaper.

He opened up the package. The contents were knobby, curious lumps, very grimy.

"I'll eat one raw if you want me to," he offered, "and if it hurts me I'll—I'll—eat my dog!" The dog appeared to be a Box-Foston, and did not look particularly appetizing. That wasn't necessary, we murmured.

"What I'd rather do is the way I used to do back in Wyoming, come to your house and cook them my own way, with a steak. Because I don't want you to throw them away. I'm afraid," plaintively—"lots of the people I give them to DO throw them away."

◆ ◆ ◆

We promised to try them, and took them home. It took a good deal of washing and scraping, and all the while we were wondering if he could be one of those sadistic maniacs . . . We ate a small piece raw, and nothing happened. We sliced them up, and sauted them, and ate them for dinner. They were delicious, heavenly, absolutly the best mushrooms we have ever tastd. And to our surprise, we were all alive the next morning.

◆ ◆ ◆

The grower, who said his name was Charlie Chandler, has gone "down the coast" to do a job of work this summer. Got to the point where it was either work or starve, he said. But he's coming back next fall. And maybe we'll take him up, after all, on that offer to come over and cook them "in his own way."

NO SPORTS FOR US, THANKS

Carmel has been asked to contribute $250 to promote the program of the Monterey Peninsula Internation Sports Association in connection with the opening of the Carmel-San Simeon highway next year. This is as good a time as any for Carmel to make a gesture, consistent with its traditional, but not always sincere, repudiation of "advertiing" of this sort. The type of crowd which is attracted to such programs is not the type which does Carmel any good—the kind of good it desires. We are perfectly willing that the people who will come to the Monterey peninsula over the Carmel-San Simeon highway to attend a ballyhoo highway opening and a program of "international sports" shall continue right on to Monterey and the Hotel Del Monte. The people we want in Carmel are those who are looking for a place of quiet beauty in which to rest, or for seclusion in which to write, compose music or paint.

The people who have nothing better to do than drive about the state looking for crowds and speech-making and bands playing and banners waving, will find little to interest them in Carmel, and will not stay long—unless we put up a Ferris wheel and a merry-go-round and a few hot-dog stands for their delectation.

A few months ago John Jordan, who thinks that participation in the program of the Monterey Peninsula Internatoinal Sports Association will be a "good thing" for Carmel, made a stirring oration at a council-meeting, against the plan of the SERA project committee to build grates for picnickers on the beach. It would attract the "wrong kind" of people to Carmel, he said, and he also said that "Carmel people don't use the beach, anyway."

We take exception to this statement, and we would add that if Carmel has $250 to spend, it could be spent to much better advantage on keeping the beach clean for Carmel people; dragging it to remove kelp occasionally, to say nothing of removing the debris of picnic parties. Flickering fires in grates built unobtrustively close to the cliffs are much less disturbing to people who love the simplicity of Carmel life at its best, than throngs of people attracted here by a sports program.

COUNTY LOSES BECHDOLT

Monterey county sustains a serious loss in the retirement of Frederick Bechdolt as director of SERA. Mr. Bechdolt organized the relief work program in this county from the ground up, and saw it through the first difficult year. He has a rare combination of the specific abilities which are required for such a job, and which only too seldom are found in one individual; sensitivity, first of all, to the human side of this problem; the common touch which has made the workers feel that he had their interests at heart; familiarity, as an old resident, with the whole county; organizing efficiency; an immense capacity for hard work; patience with illimitable detail; humor to help him over the rough spots. Few peace-time jobs have offered the gruelling strain of directing the SERA program; Mr. Bechdolt's friends have watched with concern the expenditure of strength which has worn this high-strung, sensitive man through months of unremitting labor.

It will be difficult to replace Fred Bechdolt, and Monterey county may well feel concern at losing one who had the situation so admirably in hand; who conducted a difficult job to the high satisfaction of the home folks.

CARMEL HAVEN FOR RETIRED ARMY OFFICERS

SOMEONE was checking over the army blue book, or whatever it is the army officers are registered in, the other day, and discovered that in the past few years more than a score of retired officers and their families have come to live in Carmel, Pacific Grove and the Country Club. The pioneer of them all was Colonel Wilson T. Davidson, who arrived about 1925.

From all U. S. army posts and from foreign service, the army people have converged upon this region, which seems to them the ideal spot in which to spend their declining years. A number of other families are known to be planning to come here as soon as the head of the household leaves active duty.

At Presidio in 1905

Col. Davidson first became acquainted with this region in 1905-6, when he was stationed at Monterey Presidio. He went into the army in 1898 and was a medical officer until and through the World War. He was retired in 1920, and came here to live about 10 years ago. Mrs. Davidson is with him, at their home on Portola Road, facing the Abalone ball park.

About nine years ago came Major H. L. Watson, who lives with his family at Eleventh and Torres. He was an air officer, and was last stationed at Dayton, Ohio. About 19 years ago he was at Monterey Presidio and formed a permanent attachment to the peninsula, which he revisited during tours of duty at San Diego, San Francisco and Sacramento. The family consists of Mrs. Watson and four children; Charles, Theodore and Eleanor, all now out of high school, and Elizabeth, still of elementary school age.

Had Polo Accident

In 1927 came Captain and Mrs. Patrick Hudgins, after he had been retired for disability, because of the polo accident at Fort Snelling, Minn., which sent him to the Walter Reed Hospital for a year. He went into the army in 1916 from his family home in Hudgins, Va., and saw 17 months' service overseas, including seven months on the Rhine with the Army of Occupation. He and Mrs. Hudgins live at San Antohio and Second.

Colonel and Mrs. J. F. Kreps of Eighth and Torres established their home here about seven years ago, and although the colonel spends summers on his son's ranch in Plumas county and was in San Francisco much of the past winter, this is still their real home.

Called Back to Duty

On duty last at Ft. Leavenworth school, in Kansas, Col. Kreps was retired for disability incident to service in 1914, but was called back to active duty during the war in Europe; was stationed in San Francisco as adjutant general. His last army post before going to the Ft. Leavenworth school was in Nome, Alaska. About two years ago, Col. Kreps went back to West Point to attend the fiftieth anniversay of his West Point class of 1883. Col. and Mrs. Kreps resided in Palo Alto for a short time before coming here. Their children are all grown and established in their own homes.

Colonel C. E. Hathaway claims to be Carmel's "oldest inhabitant," by virtue of the fact that he visited this region in 1887, when, as a child, his mother took him on a tour of the California missions. They saw the 17-Mile Drive and the mission via horse and buggy, and he never forgot the wild beauty of the Carmel coast. In 1898 he entered the army and saw service in the Philippines. When Monterey Presidio post was built in 1903, he was on the scene. His last station before retiring in 1925 was at Ft. Meade, S. D. Since 1919 he has made his home in Carmel, save for short trips away. He and Mrs. Hathaway live at San Antonio and Eighth.

Famed as Thespian

Major and Mrs. Chester A. Shepherd and their two little girls live in the Country Club, and have been associated with this region for about five years. He has added to his fame here as an amateur actor and executive of the Community Players. He was on duty at San Francisco Presidio before retiring for the second time in 1921, having been recalled to service during the World War, after being retired previously. He is a graduate of West Point.

Colonel John Cocke came directly to Carmel from Monterey Presidio when he was retired about two years ago. His army service dated from the days of the Spanish-American war, and included foreign duty. For the past fortnight he has been confined to Letterman Hospital in San Francisco because of illness. Mrs. Cocke and their daughter, Nancy, complete the household at Fourth and San Antonio.

Toured Whole Coast

Retiring about two years ago, after four years in command of Battery F at Monterey which preceded his last six years of service at Denver, Major W. E. Kneass, accompanied by Mrs. Kneass, toured the Pacific coast from Canada to Mexico, just to see if there was any place which rivalled Carmel at a permanent home. Satisfied, they returned here, and have made their home ever since at Camino Real and Fourth. He went through the Spanish-American war, the Philippipne insurrection, the Mexican border troubles and the world war. One of his adventures was to fire the first shot of artillery fire in the taking of Manila. The son of Major and Mrs. Kneass, Bill, the wood-carver, is with them here.

Major and Mrs. Fielding T. Robeson of La Loma Terrace first discovered Carmel when he was on duty at Alcatraz about 14 years ago, and came here to live in January, 1933. His last post was Fort Slocum, New York. He went through all the fracases since the Spanish-American War, and saw duty at posts in Denver, Georgia, New Jersey, North Carolina.

Active Forty Years

Colonel C. G. Lawrence is retired here after 40 years of active duty all over the United States and in its territorial possessions and regards as one of his most interesting experiences the Pulajan campaign in the Philippines in 1905 and 6. Before his last station in Cheyenne he was on duty in Oakland for several years.

In 1902 he helped clear the reservation at Monterey, to build the presidio, and had revisited the region occasionally. The family circle includes Mrs. Lawrence, her mother, Mrs. Carrie J. Peckham, Miss Charlotte, artist and amateur actress, and last but not least, a collie dog. Their home is at 835 Casanova.

Colonel T. B. Taylor was last on service in Boston, before coming here a year and a half ago. In the army since the days of the Spanish-American war, he had visited Carmel at various times while stationed at posts in the great Southwest, over a period of 25 or 30 years. He and Mrs. Taylor live at Alta and Mission; their three children are "married and gone."

Here for Year

Major and Mrs. G. H. Totten, Twelfth and Camino Real, have lived here for about a year. He was in the army for about 18 years, and his last active duty was at San Francisco Presidio. A son, Ralph, is stationed at Monterey Presidio, and other children are in the east.

On Marcheta Lane in the Country Club live Colonel and Mrs. P. W. Corbusier, newcomers last July. Last on service in San Antonio, Texas, the colonel was retired in 1931. They had purchased a home in San Antonio and expected to remain there, but after visiting their son-in-law and daughter, Lieut. and Mrs. Millard Pierson, at their quarters in Monterey Presidio, they sold their home and came here to live. And now the Piersons have been transferred to Ft. Reilly. Col. Corbusier was the son of an army officer, and has been in service since 1898.

Was In Air Corps

Colonel Lawrence W. McIntosh was an air officer of the Ninth Corps Area, stationed in San Francisco, before coming here last November. He was graduated from West Point in 1908 and was in the cavalry until transferring to the air corps in 1917. He discovered Carmel in 1930, when he was in command at Crissy Field. A New Englander, he has made himself a nuisance "talking California" whenever he returns to his childhood home, and thinks this the most delightful part of California in which to live. He and Mrs. McIntosh, who were married just before coming here last fall, live at Pebble Beach.

Last April came Colonel and Mrs. W. A. Austin, from their last army station at Detroit and brief residence in San Antonio. They live in the Country Club, and Mrs. John H. Atwood, Mrs. Austin's mother, completes the family circle.

Came Month Ago

Colonel and Mrs. R. R. Wallace and her sister, Miss Flora Stewart, joined the army circle a little over a month ago, and are living at Pebble Beach. He was a marine corps chief-of-staff before retiring this spring.

This week, Brigadier General and Mrs. Daniel W. Hand are moving into their permanent Carmel home, 725 San Antonio, which they recently purchased from John E. Abernethy. He had been in the army about 38 years, and was stationed at San Francisco Presidio at the time of his retirement a year ago last November. He and Mrs. Hand toured the Orient as a prelude to settling down here. They report that a number of army people in the Philippines have their eyes on Carmel, and a young officer in San Francisco who will not be retired for many years, is thinking of establishing a home here now so that it will be all ready for him.

Trip to Yosemite

Another popular army household is that of Colonel and Mrs. James S. Parker, who are now in Yosemite. Col. Parker was born in Washington, D. C., and was graduated from the Army School of the Line. He retired in 1920, and has lived in Carmel since about 1928. With the Parkers in their home on Scenic is their young daughter, Jane Ellen. A grown son of Col. Parker is also an army officer.

Carmel still claims Colonel and Mrs. J. W. Stilwell and their four children, as they have a home here and will return to lvie after his retirement, which may follow his present tour of duty as attache to the American legation in Pekin. Colonel and Mrs. O. H. P. Hazzard are now in San Francisco, but their friends say they expect to settle in Carmel later.

BULKIEST CONSTITUTION

Amended more than 200 times, the constitution of the State of California is the biggest and bulkiest governing any of the 48 states, according to the University of California Bureau of Public Administration. Framed in 1879, it now contains more than 75,000 words.

Have you seen the large colored drawing of the proposed new Carmel Theatre?

I think it is Horrible. I mean Hollywood. And I am no artist and am not supposed to know anything about art.

Where are the artists of Carmel? Where are the Carmel members of the Monterey History & Art Association?

A group in Monterey with no authority behind them, only public opinion, have for several years controlled the design of new buildings. Wake up, Carmel!

ART NOTES

San Francico's State Emergency Relief Administration will be represented in an exhibition of art work to be held at the Corcoran Gallery at Washington, D. C.

* * *

Through the generosity of Sam Hyde Harris, well-known painter of Southern California landscapes, the San Gabriel Artists' Guild has this month received as a donation from Mr. Harris, one of his fine oils. Upon action taken by the board of directors a formal vote of thanks was extended Harris.

* * *

Jean Mannheim, noted artist of Pasadena, California, is having one of the largest showings of his paintings ever given at the Stanford Art Gallery. This exhibition includes portraits, marines, landscapes, and still-lifes done in exceptionally fine painter's technique for which Mannheim is noted.

Mannheim studied in Germany, France, and England, winning first prize from Brangwyn, the noted English artist, for his compositional subjects. A Paris Salon prize for figure drawing and first prizes and medals in many other art exhibitions, too many to list, demonstrate the artist's abilly. There is perhaps not another artist in California who has influenced the work of so many of the younger artist group in this state and who has been so generous and modest in this assistance. For this reason he is fondly known as the "Dean of California Artists."

The work of Jean Mannheim is done with bold free strokes, but with a resultant careful attention to form, producing vigorous and faithful subjects on his canvasses.

The exhibition will remain until July 8th, and is considered by Pedro de Lemos, director of the Gallery, to be the finest exhibition of the University year.

The Gallery is open every day from 10 to 5 and no admission is charged.

NEWSPAPER MAN TO VISIT

Edward M. Bauer, Jr., San Joaquin county vintner and circulation manager of the Lodi Daily Sentinel will visit in Carmel over the week-end. He will be a guest at the home of Mrs. R. C. Monteagle. Bauer is a frequent visitor to the Monterey peninsula. He was formerly advertising counselor for the San Mateo Daily Times. He was graduated from Stanford in 1932.

WIN DRAMA PRIZE

University of California Extension Division players were awarded first prize in the 1935 annual drama tournament of the Northern California Drama Association. There are 85 producing groups in the association, which was organized under the sponsorship of the Recreation Commission of San Francisco.

HERE FROM KANSAS

Guest of Tilly Polak in her Carmel home is Mrs. C. Stanton Babcock of Ft. Reilly, Kansas, the former Jadwiga Noskowiak, sister of Sonya Noskowiak and grand-daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parmelee Eells. She is rehearsing with the Bach festival chorus and expects to resume her old place in Carmel activities during her summer stay here.

BEG PARDON!

Summer Session at Pacific Grove High School to Open on June 24

THE very successful session of last year's summer school will be repeated this year beginning June 24 at the Pacific Grove High School. The feature will be a course in biology under the direction of Harry James Snook, now employed by the College of the Pacific and the Stockton High School. Mr. Snook spent several years studying the seashore animals of the coast, and wrote "Seashore Animals of the Pacific Coast," with Dr. M. E. Johnson as a co-author. The class will be taken to the out-of-doors where the specimens are to be found in their natural habitat.

Miss Sylvia Garrison, instructor in voice culture in the Oakland Technical High School and director of the technical high A Cappella choir, will present a course in vocal instruction. Miss Garrison will conduct two classes in voice culture, one to those of high school age, three evenings a week, and one to adults, two evenings a week. Miss Garrison is an authority in the art of singing, being a thorough musician with a wide musical experience. During three recent summer she studied voice and voice-class methods with Frederick H. Haywood of New York City.

With Ernest P. Alwyn of Palo Alto High School, and J. F. O'Hanlon of Pacific Grove High School assisting, Frank Mancini, director of instrumental music in the Modesto High School, will conduct the courses in band and orchestra.

Practical journalism will be stressed by W. M. O'Donnell, city editor of the Monterey Peninsula Herald, a graduate of the Cornell University. He will go to the source of news with the class, after which the news will be written up for criticism and suggestions. Mr. O'Donnell will be assisted in this course by Mrs. Sutton Christian.

E. K. Bramblett, head of the commercial department and principal of the evening high school, will offer courses in elementary and advanced typewriting. A. B. Ingham, principal of the Pacific Grove High School, will conduct a class in elementary algebra.

All courses are open to high school pupils and adults. The school will commence June 24 and continue five days a week, four hours a day, until Aug. 23. Classes will meet afternoons and evenings.

The costs are very nominal. The registration fee is $2 payable at time of registration, and there is no tuition charge.

To Employ SERA to Eliminate Fire Hazard

Cleaning up of dry-brush fire hazards in Carmel will be effected through SERA labor, if a project which Mayor Thoburn was authorized by resolution of the council Wednesday evening to submit to SERA headquarters is approved. The action followed reading of a request signed by Fire Chief Robert Leidig, and which pointed out the unusual hazards this year in that grass has grown extra high because of heavy rains, and is now beginning to get ripe and dry.
